

Post-delivery, the eye ducts have less fluid retention capacity, increasing the possibility of blurriness.

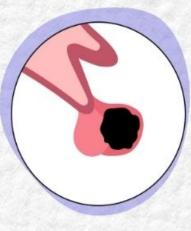

Preeclampsia is also known to cause vision problems in women after delivery.

Changes in blood sugar levels during pregnancy leading to diabetes mellitus might result in vision problems.

Pregnancy-induced hypertension might also lead to changes in vision.

Although rare, pituitary adenoma may also cause vision changes after pregnancy.

Source: https://www.momjunction.com/articles/vision-changes-afterpregnancy_00352791/