

Typical Teenage Behavior

They may change their appearance by dyeing or cutting their hair, wearing clothes to match their peers, or getting a new piercing or a tattoo.

They may not agree with you as much as they did before and find faults in your ways of teaching.

Their behavior in family gatherings and with you may become distant since they start spending more time with friends and on their phones.

They may raise their voice at you in arguments and slam the doors and cry.

They may sneak out of the house to attend popular parties and lie to go on trips.

Their mood may become quite unpredictable and suddenly change from jolly to grumpy.

References

1. Teen Behavior. What's Worrisome, What's Not; UH Hospitals
2. Typical vs. Abnormal Teen Behavior; Middle Earth
3. Behavior and how to manage it: Pre-teens and teenagers; Raising Children Network