

Popular Games Among LDR Couples

Never Have I Ever

One of you has to say something that you haven't done, such as "never have I ever been on a roller coaster," and your partner can either say "I have" or "never." You can decide who loses or wins.

Charades

Turn on your webcams or go on a video call for this game. Much like heads-up, one of you has to act out an actor, a song, or a movie, and your partner will guess the correct answer.

20 Questions

One of you has to think of something, and your partner will have to guess what it is based on 20 questions. As they ask each question, you have to answer yes or no to give them a hint of the answer.

This or That

A perfect game to know each other better, this or that, is similar to "would you rather?" where you'll ask one another what or who they prefer the most by giving them two options for each round.

Celebrity Roleplay

Pick a celebrity of your choice and act and talk like them throughout the day over texts, calls, or video calls. Your partner can guess who you are doing and may develop their own roleplay. You can also play this over a video call and guess the celebrities.

