

What You Should Teach Your SCHOOL-GOING CHILD

Table manners:

Teach them the proper way to sit at the lunch table and the etiquette of eating, such as chewing with their mouth closed and not wasting food.

Cleaning up the mess:

Teach them to clean up after themselves, such as picking up their toys and clearing the table after eating and before going out to play.

Being responsible with money:

Teach them where to keep their money when outside, how to stay aware of it, and where and how to spend it.

Saying the magic words:

Make it a habit at home to say "please" and "thank you" for them to learn to say them outside with their teachers and friends.

Sharing is caring:

Encourage sharing their toys or stationery to help others and form healthy friendships. Also, let them know the hygiene practices of sharing food to prevent health issues.

Keeping public spaces clean:

Teach them to always throw trash, such as wrappers and bottles, in the trash cans and never litter public places.
