

Signs You Are Ready For Marriage — While In A — Relationship

You have experienced highs and lows in your relationship

You have experienced bad times and have overcome them together. This has strengthened your bond.

You plan for the future

Marriage is just not a pompous day for you. You have thought deeply about a future together.

You are comfortable around each other

You no longer need to impress each other and have found bliss in just staying together.

Your friends and family like each other

This is the ideal situation to commit to a long-term relationship.

You don't expect your partner to change

You like each other with all the flaws.

You can freely discuss finances

You are comfortable opening up on the finance front as it is crucial to progress with a household and family.

