

Points To Consider When Buying A Korean Cleanser

Pick a cleanser that is compatible with your skin type.

Look for ingredients commonly used in Korean skincare products, such as rice water.

Go through the entire ingredients list to steer clear of any allergens.

Research the credibility of a new brand if you are unfamiliar with it.

Check the benefits and side effects of a Korean ingredient that's new to you.

Select a neutral pH-level cleanser to keep the skin from dehydrating.

Consider a foam-based cleanser for an exfoliating effect.

Choose a gel-based cleanser for a hydrating effect.
