

BUYING CHILDREN'S TOYS

Based On Age-Related MILESTONES

Opt for toys that are multiplayer and encourage competition.

Get toys that are conversation starters to help avoid peer pressure-related problems.

Choose toys that assist in improving their physical health.

Select rule-based toys to teach children about self-discipline.

Buy toys that interest your child rather than those that automatically conform to gender stereotypes.

Avoid toys that can make them feel uncomfortable about their body.

References:

1. The Growing Child: School-Age (6 to 12 Years); Stanford Medicine Children's Health