

Interesting Learning Play

For Your 20-Month-Old

Squishy play

Give wet sponges to your toddler and show them how to squeeze the water out. Let them play by washing their doll, bicycle, or mailbox; it will help them develop their physical skills.

Grow a garden

Sow some flower seeds outside or in a pot. Allow your little one to watch you and offer them some chances to use gardening tools while you are watching.

Band together

Get some objects like bells, tins, and rattles. Start singing a song with some music and dance with your little one.

Make bubbles

Take a bowl, fill it with some water, and bubble liquid. Take a straw and try to blow some bubbles. Let your toddler observe you and then try for themselves.

Freeze dance

Play music and dance with your toddler, and then stop the music and freeze. Toddlers love such games, and it helps them understand directions (start and stop).

Collect the leaves

Give your toddler a small basket and take them for a walk in a local park. Let them collect leaves or small sticks and put them in the basket. This activity will make them observe their surroundings.
