

LIVING TOGETHER BUT SEPARATED? HERE'S WHY...

Children

They wish to make the transition stress-free for their children while they monitor how the children react to their parents' separation.

Friends And Family

Couples may have difficulty disclosing separation to their loved ones and hence choose to stay under the same roof.

Financial Issues

After having lived together, it is natural to divide the expenses between each other. So now, neither of them may be in a position to afford a house and maintain the expenses alone.

Petty Arguments

Petty but constant arguments may take a toll on a relationship. In such situations, they may still have feelings for each other but may want to take some time for themselves.
